Limited Preparation Questioner Instructions

The goal of the ICCFS Limited Prep Event is to help the speakers practice responding conversationally to questions or statements using examples such as one or more of the following to develop a point: a personal experience, a historical event, a story from literature, a current event.

1. Read the questions/statements in the order they are listed.
2. The speaker may ask for a different question/statement, but the prep time is running once you pose the first question/statement.
3. If the speaker is having a difficult time speaking, encourage them with possible examples.
4. If you reach the end of the list start over from the beginning. Try to give later speakers the unused topics.
5. Once the speaker has finished making their point on the first topic, present a second question/statement and repeat.
